TWO LITTLE GIRLS.

They Settle Their Troubles With Fight and One Gets Cut.

Two nicely dressed colored girls about twelve years old figured in an assault case in Judge Miller's court yesterday afternoon. Minnie Lewis had two ugly cuts across her face and a physician had put several stitches in them. Carrie Minor, another school girl, appeared as defendant. While at school some days ago the girls had some trouble about a hat and later the following letter passed between them: "MINNIE LEWIS:

"If you want to get your hat back come up to 3d and D streets. You told ida that you was going to get that hat back if you died, and told Miss Rosie that you was going to paw my eyes out when mother came along. Now, I will paw the eyes out of your face if you don't mind out, and I will see who beats this time. I wish our mothers could witness it, but they may after all. You will oblige me by doing so.

"CARRIE E. MINOR."

"P. S. The one that gets beat will be

"P. S. The one that gets beat will be salled mouse and the one that will win will be lion, so see who will be the winner."

The girls met on the corner mentioned in the letter and proceeded to settle their difference. It took but a few minutes to settle the difficulty, for the Minor girl drew the penknife and slashed Minnie Lewis across the face.

Judge Miller heard the proof and spoke

Judge Miller heard the proof and spoke of the seriousness of the affair.

Mrs. Minor said that she had whipped her child with a rope.

The child, the judge said, was rather young to be sent to jail and any fine which he might impose would have to be paid by the parents. He thought, however, that if the parents had to pay a fine they would be more careful in the future. A fine of $20 was imposed.

The Wine Stronger.

A short, thickset man from the Emerald Isle, whose name was registered as John Gleason and whose snow white hair was the result of honest toil, appeared before the Police Court today on a charge of sleeping against a post on a public road where the policeman who arrested him thought he occupied too much of the ridewalk. The old man said he had never been arrested before in his life and he was anx-lous to get out and go to Baltimore.

"Where is your home?" the judge asked.

"I've got no special home, your honor."

was his reply, "me home is wherever I

Where are you working now?" "Nowhere, your honor."
"Then you have no home?"
"None, your honor."
"Where are you going from here?"

"Where are you going from here?"
"To Baltimore, your honor."
"But you have no money?"
"I can walk there, your honor."
Judge Miller explained to John that he was rather an old man to be arrested for such an offense.
"Well, your honor," said the old man, "I met a friend I hadn't seen for ten years, and of course we had a few drinks. The wine they make these days, your honor.

wine they make these days, your honor, goes to your head faster than it did in old "You may go," the judge told him, "but you had better leave the city right away before you get picked up again."

Mrs. Arnold and Her Pupils. Mrs. Geo. M. Arnold denies that her pu-pils were the first to rush from their room when the excitement occurred in the Garnet building Thursday. Mrs. Arnold says: "I hurriedly closed the door of my room and, having learned the cause of the noise, and, having learned the cause of the noise, informed my pupils. My entire school of fifty-two pupils, with the exception of ten boys, who left the room by a door in the rear, retained their self-possession, and the work in the room continued as if nothing unusual had happened. They were dismissible in a quiet orderly manner sensitive. ed in a quiet, orderly manner sometime after the panic. They did not lose their heads, but on the other hand were as brave as little soldiers."

Naval and members of the Grand Lodge. Naval Lodge has occupied this building since 1820 and recently sold it to erect a hall at the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and 4th street southeast, and, as may be imagined, the meeting was an interesting one. The Grand Master made an address, Mr. Huyler a lecture and reminiscences were given by W. E. Hutchinson, I. McCathran, E. M. Boteler, John Shultze, Chas. Smith and others and the Masonic choir gave some fine music. They accepted the invitation to meet at Potomac Lodge room in West Washington till their new hall is completed.
